

Rhys Hester, J.D., Ph.D.

Rhys Hester is a professor at Clemson University. He is the former Deputy Director of the Pennsylvania Commission on Sentencing, and previously was a Research Fellow in Sentencing Law and Policy at the Robina Institute, University of Minnesota Law School, and was an Associate Research Professor of Sociology and Criminology at Penn State University. He holds a PhD in Criminology and Criminal Justice and a JD from the University of South Carolina. His research is in the areas of sentencing and courts; he has published in academic journals and law reviews including Criminology, Journal of Quantitative Criminology, and Crime and Justice: A Review of Research.